Basics of Equine Insurance

Michael Taylor, Taylor Harris Insurance Services

AT YOUR HOME, AT THE BARN OR IN THE RING, ACCIDENTS CAN HAPPEN TO YOUR HORSE.

THE ROMANS HAD AN EXPRESSION THAT APPLIES perfectly to the horse business: “caveat emptor” or “buyer beware.”

This expression also applies to the complicated issue of insuring your horses. Insurance policies are not purposefully designed to be unreadable, but all too often that’s the horse owner’s experience. The print is invariably small, the language is arcane and often includes double negatives, there are complex provisions like deductibles, exclusions and co-insurances, along with a myriad of options from which to chose.

Plus there’s a wide variety of policies to choose from: equine mortality, major medical, surgical coverage only, loss of use, and trip transit policies, to name a few.

Barn, farm and ranch owners, along with members of horse clubs, have even more risks and policies to consider (and are beyond the scope of this introduction).

Confused yet? So how do you make sense of it all?

First, do a little homework. Then search for a reputable agent with a background in horse management—someone who knows the difference between combined driving and combined training as well as a hock from a hole in the ground. The agent also needs to be willing to answer your questions promptly and clearly.

Most importantly, you need to find someone who understands your passion for horses.

SOME BASICS

Equine insurance policies are similar to most liability and life insurance policies—there’s a legal contract in which the underwriter of the policy agrees to indemnify the insured for losses that occur under specified terms. The cost for this protection is the premium, which is a percentage of the amount insured, or the policy limit.

For equine insurance, this limit may be an amount up to “the market value” of your horse—an amount the underwriter agrees to pay, generally based on factors such as the horse’s age, breed, use, level and value.

If you’re unable to replace your horse in the event of a loss, or even more importantly, if you can’t afford the considerable costs of veterinary care should your horse suffer a serious illness or injury, insurance can be a good way to mitigate those risks.

Horses are like family and so we don’t want economics dictating the quality of care available.

MARKET VALUE

As I’ve mentioned, the underwriter agrees under the terms of the policy to pay up to the “current market value” of a horse. If you’ve recently purchased your horse, it’s easy to establish that purchase price as being the current market value.

But some situations require more evidence. For instance, if you bought a horse cheaply as a prospect and then discover it has more talent than you anticipated. As a result, its value can increase significantly. It’s important to keep your agent abreast of this good news, so you can justify an increase in the insured amount.

Of course, the reverse is all too often true. If the horse doesn’t perform as expected, unfortunately you’ll need to reduce the insured value in line with the decreased current market value.

If you bred your horse yourself or it was given to you, a knowledgeable insurance agent will ask some pertinent questions to help establish the correct value.

As you may expect, speculative value, sentimental value, replacement cost or losses of profits are not a part of the calculation.

HORSE HEALTH

The most important thing for an owner, trainer or veterinarian to know is the health history of your horse. This is especially true for insurance coverage. A horse with a known physical problem—such as a history of colic—may have that condition excluded under the policy. (Note to owners: it’s extremely important to know all exclusions in your policy.) A claim for a horse with a pre-existing condition is not likely to get paid.

Not all exclusions are permanent, however, so keep your agent apprised of improving conditions.

Remember to call your agent about a veterinary visit for anything other than routine check-ups. If you're worried about something, chances are the underwriter needs to know. It's better to be safe than sorry and realize that honesty will get you the best result in the long run.

In the unfortunate event of a horse dying, you need to notify your agent immediately, even if this happens on a weekend or holiday. Call your agent's office to get instructions on how to proceed. Good agents have 24/7 service and are available to you if needed.

You'll need to provide a necropsy (which is an autopsy on an animal) to make a claim under your policy. This is the owner's responsibility. Many veterinary teaching hospitals and state departments of agriculture provide this service.

OTHER COVERAGE

Most policies cover your horse while it's in the U.S. and Canada. The coverage continues even if your horse is under someone else's care. For example, if a prospective owner is trying out the horse before committing to a purchase, your horse is still covered.

If your horse is purchased outside North America, it can easily be insured by getting the policy extended to include its current home. You'll also likely want to insure the air trip back to the U.S.

Similarly, if your horse is going to compete abroad, it's easy to extend the territorial limits of the policy to include those international events.

As you may know, there are other insurance policies beyond basic equine mortality and major medical coverage to protect the significant financial investments you've made in your horses.

Additional coverage is available for such things as insuring a mare and foal during pregnancy and foaling, infertility insurance for your breeding mares and stallions, and loss of use insurance covering the permanent loss in value if a performance horse loses the ability to compete.

Your agent can discuss a range of comprehensive and customized coverage for your four-legged friend.

Good luck with your horse and have fun. Remember, it's a sport after all. ♦

Timber Frame Horse Barns

HANDS-ON APPROACH TO CUSTOM, QUALITY CRAFTSMANSHIP

Few things are more rewarding than building a horse barn from the ground up. Timber by timber, each piece is cut, milled and carved with fine precision. We know that the success of an authentic timber frame structure rests on expert engineering, quality materials and craftsmen who are skilled in traditional post and beam construction techniques.

At B&D Builders, we build it right, or we don't build it.

[Good to Know]

Just a few things we'd thought you'd like to know this month

Gorgeous Gardens. Yearning for a breath of fresh air and vistas of spring flowers? Visit Stoneleigh, Villanova's newest public garden, at its grand opening on May 13th. Natural Lands, a land conservation nonprofit, took over stewardship of the property from the Haas family to share the park-like setting with the community. Boasting over a mile of paved garden pathways and a gracious Tudor revivalist mansion, Stoneleigh is an oasis of tranquility on the Main Line. StoneleighGarden.org.

Legendary Lady. A Chester County equestrian icon has jumped onto the big screen. Goodnight Ladies—a documentary about the life adventures of Nancy Penn Smith Hannum—won a WINNIE award at the Equus Film Festival for best of Equestrian History, along with other awards. Hannum was a passionate Master of Fox Hounds who rode and hunted in Chester County for more than a half century. Her granddaughter, Christiana, made the film in honor of this fearless role model and to share her story with the world. Watch the trailer on YouTube.

An Old Deed, Indeed! Think your house is old? Well, the first ever real estate deed in the original Chester County was signed 330 years ago on March 10, 1688. Given the county's Quaker history, the deed is, not surprisingly, for a Quaker meeting-house, now located in Chester, PA. This deed—and maybe some of your own house's history—can be viewed at the Chester County Archives. Visit at 601 Westtown Rd., West Chester. ChesCo.org.

All Abilities Welcome. Break out your bike and push the pedals towards a good cause—The Cinco de Mayo Benefit Bike Ride and Walk in Exton. This festive event features three different rides for beginners to experts, followed by a Cinco de Mayo music and food fiesta. # Follies: Architectural Whimsy in the Garden

AT WINTERTHUR MUSEUM, GARDEN & LIBRARY

Through January 5, 2020

FROM GOTHIC TOWERS TO FAERIE COTTAGES, 13 fantastical structures—some old, some new—await you at Winterthur in their first-ever garden exhibition, Follies: Architectural Whimsy in the Garden.

So what exactly is a folly? In architecture, a folly is a whimsical or extravagant structure placed in a garden or landscape for decoration but may appear to be used for some other purpose. Follies are intended to amuse observers, frame a vista, pique the viewer's curiosity, and in Winterthur's case, inspire exploration of the landscape.

Some of the follies at Winterthur are relocated historic structures that have been in the garden for years thanks to founder Henry Francis du Pont's resourcefulness and imagination. Others are new additions based on classic and contemporary follies at other estates.

As you explore the curving paths of the 60-acre garden—with the help of their handy and informative app if you're so inclined—the follies add yet another delightful point of interest to the already breathtaking landscape.

Come see for yourself! ♦

~Mary Irene Dolan

IF YOU GO: 5105 Kennett Pike (Rt. 52), Winterthur. Admission $6–$20. More information at Winterthur.org or call 302-888-4600.

FAERIE COTTAGE. Located in the Enchanted Woods where children of all ages come to enjoy and explore, this folly is made of salvaged materials—including iron and stone—from the estate's earlier gardens, giving it a uniquely magical presence.

BRICK LOOKOUT. The tin roof was once part of a shed at the museum's entrance court in the 1940s and '50s. Now it sits atop the brick folly on Sycamore Hill and serves as one of many examples of Henry Francis du Pont's architectural repurposing skills.

NEOCLASSICAL FOLLY. Nestled among the meadows, this new structure contrasts sharply with its strong courthouse-like presence. Its Greek influence is seen in its design modeled after the portico, or entrance, to Greek-styled temples and public buildings.

NEEDLE'S EYE. This folly may be new to Winterthur but its design is inspired by a folly constructed in the 18th century in Yorkshire, England. You'll see it on the main drive as you enter the estate—appearing to float on the pond and creating eye-catching reflections in the water.

GOTHIC TOWER. Inspired by gothic towers, sham castles and fake ruins in European landscapes of the 1700s and 1800s, this new folly—made of charred wood—stands out and brings a sense of age and importance to the property along with a fairytale-esque feel.

GREEN FOLLY. True to its name, this new folly is made completely of plant materials found on the Winterthur estate—including tree trunks, beech twig thatching and woodland embellishments—embodying the green spirit of the garden.

1750 HOUSE. The facade of this historic structure was relocated from New Castle, DE to Winterthur in the 1960s, now presiding over the Conservatory lawn and bordering Azalea Woods.

LATIMERIA SUMMERHOUSE. Henry Francis du Pont saved this pagoda-topped gazebo from destruction at Wilmington's Latimeria estate and installed it in Winterthur's Peony Garden in 1929. The garden has been its home ever since.

MIRRORED FOLLY. This aptly named new folly brings new views of the Pinetum with its mirrored walls that reflect the surrounding garden. Its shape however is far from new, drawing inspiration from the covered entrance of Winterthur's historic train station.

OTTOMAN TENT. You can't miss this bold new folly with its rich hues and exotic Turkish style. Reflecting the fashion of the 18th century Ottoman Empire, this tent resembles similar ones preserved in museums and gardens of England, France and Northern Europe.

Along the Main Line

MALVERN'S MEMORIAL DAY CELEBRATION

June 3 marks the 150th consecutive year of a very special parade in Malvern. First celebrated as Decoration Day in 1868 as a remembrance of soldiers who fought in the Civil War, this is the oldest, continuous parade of its kind in the country. Because so many veterans wanted to participate in the first parade, and there were competing events in Wayne and West Chester, Malvern's parade was moved to the Sunday following Memorial Day. And so it continued on that day.

Along with school bands, string bands, drum and bugle corps, bagpipes, military vehicles and numerous dignitaries, there's a Memorial Ceremony following the parade to honor local veterans who died this past year along with a Revolutionary War battle reenactment at Paoli Battlefield.

This family weekend starts with a spaghetti dinner, Saturday, June 2, followed by a concert by the Chester County Concert Band. And retailers hold a Sidewalk Sale. See you in Malvern for the sesquicentennial! ♦

IF YOU GO: June 2nd, Spaghetti Dinner, Memorial Park, Monument Ave. Malvern (moved indoors for weather). Check Facebook for details. 5 p.m. $12; children, $8.

June 3, Parade begins at 1:30 at Malvern Fire Station, heads down King St., west to Warren Ave., south to Monument Ave., west to Memorial Park, for a mile total. MalvernMemorialParade.com.

State Senator

Steeplechase Is Back

Alexander Schmidt

The season of traditions, high-intensity horse races and family fun is here again. Jump into the fun at the best steeplechase races anywhere.

SPRING FLOWERS ARE BLOOMING, COTTON-BALL clouds dot blue skies and warm breezes roll along green hills. Spring is finally here. And May brings the best way to celebrate: the 2018 steeplechase season.

Every weekend this month boasts a unique opportunity to cheer on majestic thoroughbreds and their epic dashes and jumps, including at a ruby anniversary event at Wintertur. Even better—the races are coupled with boutique shopping, race betting, tons of tailgating and raising money for good causes.

Get up and get out to join family-friendly festivities that make steeplechase a quintessential spring experience in the Brandywine Valley.

LIKE THE GOOD OLD DAYS

For newbies: a steeplechase is a distance horse race across the countryside in which competitors and their mounts must jump over fence-and-ditch obstacles. The name refers to the church steeples that designated the original race course start and finish.

Tracing its history back to Ireland over 250 years ago, steeplechase racing came to America in the late 19th century. Thomas Hitchcock began a training center for the sport at his estate in South Carolina and earned himself the title of Father of American Steeplechasing.

By the 1930s, the races spread to Pennsylvania as well as nine other states, and the hooves haven't stopped since. Races are now sanctioned by the National Steeplechase Association to ensure an authentic equestrian experience.

Today's local races are bigger and better than ever with more competitions, more high-stakes purses (that's prize money) and more fun for all.

Whether you're just steeplechase-curious or a longtime fan, check out what the area's equestrian community has to offer.

40TH WINTERTHUR POINT-TO-POINT

What better time to honor tradition than a 40th anniversary? Nestled in Henry Francis du Pont's Winterthur estate, this signature Brandywine Valley event is sure to kick off the season right on 60 acres of rolling fields and gardens at the Winterthur property.

The main race starts at 2 p.m., but while you wait, stop by the Marketplace to shop for authentic steeplechase accessories and apparel. Other must-see attractions: the Antique Carriage Parade, Pony Races, Delaware State Police Pipe Band, Parade of River Hills Foxhounds and a Rolls-Royce and Bentley car display.

If your little ones have big racetrack dreams, they can enter the hobby horse races—or just have fun with pony rides and scavenger hunts.

From shopping, to games, to upscale tailgating and thrilling horse races, Winterthur Point-to-Point is a family memory waiting to be made.

If You Go: May 6. 5105 Kennett Pk., Wilmington, DE. Admission: $15–$60. 800-448-3883. Winterthur.org.

Tips: Buy wristbands before race day; none are available at the gate. Bring your well-behaved canine buddies!

26TH WILLOWDALE STEEPLECHASE

Surprise Mom this Mother's Day with her new favorite event on her special day, the Willowdale Steeplechase. At 26, Willowdale is the youngest of the steeplechase events, but it's got plenty going for it. The lush location and rolling farmlands invite you to relax, grab a bite at the vendors or a tailgate, and enjoy the company of family and friends.

Boutique shopping is available all day—a perfect opportunity to get Mom a festive hat. Prefer steel horses to warm-blooded ones? You're in luck—an antique car display is open all day. Plus there's the kid's alley for family fun.

As for the races—starting at 1:30 p.m.—all six take place on a course the includes a unique feature—the Willowdale Water Jump—the only one of its kind in North America, featuring a 12-foot span and 18-inch drop in elevation. Horses can gallop at speeds of over 30 miles per hour, so the 4-foot fences they're clearing demand intense skill and steely nerves.

Witness these equestrian athletes and so much more to make this Mother's Day one to remember.

If You Go: May 13. 101 E. Street Rd., Kennett Square. Admission: $30. 610-444-1582; WillowdaleSteeplechase.org.

Tip: Family fun extends to four-legged members as well! Dogs with leashes are welcome.

If tailgating is more your speed, reserve your space at the Picnic Patron area and compete for prizes. Get creative with this year's theme, Hill-Billy Wedding. Surprised by the title? Let's explain. May marks the month of the 300th wedding anniversary of Throckmorton Hill and Phineous Billy, members of two local distillery families dating back to the 1700s.

Even better, proceeds benefit the Brandywine Conservancy through the Race for Open Space. This initiative helps protect land and water quality for over 63,000 acres and keeps the Brandywine Valley beautiful.

Come enjoy the thrilling races and contribute to this important cause!

If You Go: May 19. Radnor Hunt Grounds, 826 Providence Rd., Malvern. Admission: $100/ carload, plus other parking options. 610-388-8383; RadnorHuntRaces.org.

Tips: No pets. Buy passes by May 11.

84TH ANNUAL FAIR HILL RACES

Wrap up the season with a bang at the Fair Hill Races in Maryland. Not only are the races held on yet another magnificent former du Pont property, but it's the only steeplechase race in the nation that allows pari-mutuel betting.

Strike it rich with eight heart-pounding races, or spend the day perusing the Vendors Village, tailgating and joining the Hat Judging Competition.

The perfect end to a perfect season.

If You Go: May 26. 402 Fair Hill Dr., Elkton, MD. Admission: $5-$15. 410-398-2578; FairHillRaces.com.

Tips: No pets or drones. Buy tickets before race day for an extra discount! ♦

YOUR GUIDE TO THE DEVON HORSE SHOW & COUNTRY FAIR

SO MUCH TO SEE AND DO DURING THE EXCITING
11 DAYS OF DEVON. MAY 24—JUNE 3, 2018.

Story by Laurel Anderson
Photos by Brenda Carpenter

WHAT WILL YOU DO AT THE DEVON HORSE Show & Country Fair this year?

The grounds will soon come alive behind the sky blue fence along Lancaster Avenue. With 11 days of action in the Dixon Oval and the Wheeler Ring—plus scores of tempting shops throughout the Country Fair and tons of fun around the Midway—all vying for your attention, decisions are difficult.

Let our Guide on the following pages, and the one-page schedule of events, help you plan your visit. Choose whether to come for the Dog Show at the Horse Show or for Family Weekends.

Plan to watch the tiny riders in the Lead Line, the colorful Costumed Pony Hunt Cup or the expert riders at the Sapphire Grand Prix. Visit on Ladies Day or for the Tribute to our Heroes.

Join over 100,000 visitors—plus horses, riders, vendors and volunteers—who are captivated each year by the tradition that is the Devon Horse Show and Country Fair!

Just make sure you go!

FAMILY DAY & JUNIOR WEEKEND THURSDAY – SATURDAY

Family Day launches the fun on Thursday with specials on Midway rides, souvenirs and food. The evening's highlight is the Dog Show at the Horse Show at 7:30 p.m., where you can show off smaller four-legged friends that compete in six classes. Register early!

It's also time for future stars of the Dixon Oval to shine as the Junior riders show their Hunters and Jumpers.

On Saturday, even younger riders are in the spotlight with Lead Line cuties at 1 p.m. and colorful Costume Pony Hunt Teams in the Wheeler Ring at 4:30.

Check the schedule for more Devon fun: the Radnor Hunt Hounds, lemon sticks and Country Fair shopping!

MEMORIAL DAY WEEKEND SUNDAY / MONDAY

Tribute to our Heroes on Memorial Day fittingly recognizes the service of military, police, fire, EMS and their families at 6:30 p.m. The day is filled with fun from the break-neck scurry driving to the popular Shetland Pony races, plus clowns and face-painting.

On Sunday antique carriages parade through local neighborhoods for the Pleasure Drive, concluding with awards in the Dixon Oval. See everything from simple one-horse carts to grand four-in-hand teams—all with period-appropriate costumed passengers.

Then catch the Handicapped Riders' Division later in the day.

Sunday night is Eventing Night, when riders vie for a $50,000 prize as they race on a course spanning two rings, with a dozen cross country and show jumps mixed in to add to the thrills and chills!

LADIES DAY & SIDESADDLE WEDNESDAY

Devon remembers the ladies on Wednesday, Ladies Day, with free admission for ladies wearing elegant hats. Stay for special events (tickets required), goodies—edible, drinkable and more—and, of course, a hat contest. Create your own unique chapeau or coordinate with a group of friends. This year's theme, "Rosé All Day," should inspire a day of fun.

And yes, there's still plenty of action in the ring. Ladies Side Saddle is a featured event highlighting women riding gracefully in skirts and sitting aside, not astride, while clearing jumps.

Hackneys, Saddlebreds and more keep things interesting. For the evening's excitement, stay for the International Speed Stake, where open Jumpers can win $35,000.

GRAND PRIX THURSDAY

Thursday is the big night—the Sapphire Grand Prix—a thrilling display of show jumping by the best riders at Devon performing before one of the most knowledgeable and appreciative audiences in the country. Olympians, Olympic hopefuls and our best local talent jump astonishing heights on exquisite equine athletes competing for the $250,000 purse. This exciting event is often sold out far in advance, so reserve your space early! Be sure to check out the elegant tailgating and entertaining in the spectators' boxes.

During the day there's plenty to see with Jumpers, Hunters, Hackneys, Saddlebreds and more Coaching events from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

This is also the night of the big drawings for the Operation Goldmine raffle of a stunning gold handmade bangle bracelet with ten full cut round diamonds. You, too, can be a winner at the Grand Prix!

SADDLEBREDS, COACHING & MORE FRIDAY/SATURDAY

Though the 11 days of Devon are winding up, the entertainment is far from over. After the world-class riders of Thursday's Grand Prix, the rings now welcomes amateur owners of Jumpers and Hunters. And instead of high jumps, you'll see the elegant high stepping Saddlebreds circle the ring. This American breed, sometimes called the "peacock of the show ring," is distinctive in both its gait and rider's attire. Also check out winners for Coaching and Coach Horn.

Capping off Friday and Saturday evenings are the $35,000 Devon Speed Challenge and the $70,000 Idle Dice Jumper Stake, plus the Devon Derby, featuring a two-year lease on a Buick Encore SUV along with other prizes, including Phillies tickets.

FINAL WEEKEND & FAMILY FUN

Family fun opens and closes Devon. Here's one more chance to visit before next year, during the final weekend offering plenty of fun for kids. Spend time at the Midway on games, the carousel and Ferris wheel. Nosh on Devon fudge, lemon sticks, pizza, burgers, ice cream. And make sure to join the Itty Bitty Hat Parade.

Parents can check out the Art Gallery at Devon—even if they missed the festive First Night Party. Or shop at the Country Fair for Devon souvenirs or catch the Plant Sale. Make sure you stock up on Devon memories, too.

NO MATTER YOUR STYLE, ART IS OUT THERE CALLING YOUR NAME.
JOIN YOUR FELLOW ART LOVERS AT THESE CREATIVELY CHARGED EVENTS!

CHESTER COUNTY STUDIO TOUR

What happens behind the scenes at an art gallery showing? The Chester County Studio Tour is your chance to peek behind the curtains and inside the creative process, chat with artists about their work, and see them in action as you travel from studio to studio across the county. On May 19th and 20th, join your fellow art fans for this free, wide-ranging curation of artistic talent.

Now in its 8th year, the Studio Tour has grown to feature 154 artists and 64 studios, presenting paintings, sculptures, photography and more. Artist and show coordinator Jeff Schaller says tour-goers can "experience art on a one-to-one basis," and see artists' personalities shine bright in their natural habitats. The experience is far more personal and intimate than your typical art show.

Although you can't visit all 154 artists, some advance planning on the tour's website will help customize your route to the artists who pique your interests. Or let the tour planners share pre-made routes that are all about the journey—a day chock-full of exceptional artists with a tour of the scenic Chester County countryside in between.

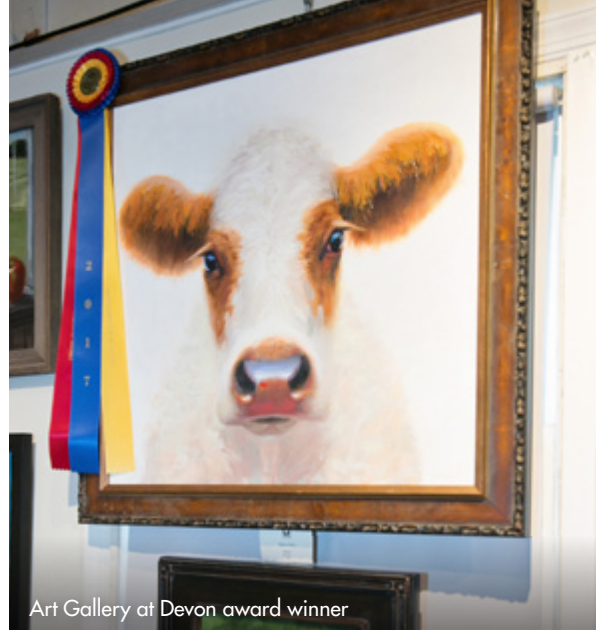

For the tour weekend, everyone can be an art collector—creative connoisseurs and browsers alike. Every studio will have art for sale for a wide range of prices, giving you a chance to expand, or start, your collection.

Join the Studio Tour for a weekend of top-notch art for all tastes and interest levels. Head for your favorites or be open to new experiences. With so many options, you may get tired, but you won't get bored.

GALLERY WALK WEST CHESTER

Mark your calendars for Gallery Walk in West Chester! From 5 to 9 p.m. on First Friday, May 4th, visit five galleries and over 15 one-night-only venues at local businesses.

This year the event has its first presenting sponsor, Sunset Hill Jewelers & Fine Arts Gallery. Not surprisingly, Sunset Hill owner, Sandra Riper, was one of the founders of Gallery Walk almost 30 years ago and maintains an art gallery on the second floor of her shop. In addition to an annual tribute to local artist Harry Dunn—with almost 100 of his works—Sunset Hill hosts about six shows each year, including the holiday miniature show, now in its 20th year.

To navigate Gallery Walk, look for maps and signs to direct you to the many locations where you'll find a wide selection of art, artists, art lovers and refreshments. Browse an eclectic array of paintings, sculpture, photography and textiles from local, national and international artists.

Grab some friends and celebrate this First Friday on the town with dinner, drinks and—of course—art!

May 4, 5 to 9 p.m. GreaterWestChester.com.

ART GALLERY AT THE DEVON HORSE SHOW

Find art in an unexpected place—under the sycamores at the Devon Horse Show and Country Fair. The Art Gallery at Devon is a fixture at this much-anticipated Main Line event.

Open from May 24th to June 4th—with a festive "First Night at Devon" preview party on May 23rd featuring a signature cocktail and drinks from the 13th Street Cocktail Caterers—the gallery boasts a juried art show of over 300 pieces of art tucked into a white-walled haven on the Country Fair grounds. You'll find paintings of horses and landscapes along with pastoral scenes and animal life rendered in an array of mediums. Look for work by this year's featured poster artist, Shawn Faust.

Local and national artists' works bedeck the walls in paintings at every size and price point. So many works sell every year that the gallery is one of the top-grossing contributors to Bryn Mawr Hospital, the beneficiary of the County Fair.

Give painted horses some love this season, too. Take a break from the excitement in the Dixon Oval and browse the finest pieces of art the Devon Horse Show has to offer.

*May 22 to June 4 10 to 10.

CRAFTED AT EAGLEVIEW

CRAFTED Craft and Arts Festival has a little something for everyone. Celebrate and support your local makers and creators at this fun, free event that represents every corner of arts and crafts.

On Sunday, June 10th, from 10 to 3, browse over 50 craft vendors to find that perfect piece to bring into your home.

Enjoy the welcoming Eagleview Town Center park as you browse a bevy of beautiful arts and crafts. CRAFTED also features craft demos (check out the demo by Malvern's new AR Workshop), live local music, a children's crafting studio, tasty food from Al Pastor, Brickside Grille, and Suburban Restaurant and Beer Garden, plus local wine and craft beer tastings.

Go for the art and stay for the fun!

Vintage Thoroughbred Farm

A UNIQUE EQUESTRIAN ESTATE IN CHESTER SPRINGS

Laurel Anderson

REAMS OF COUNTRY LIVING ARE SOMETIMES complicated by the limitations of the historic Colonial homes that anchor many of these properties—small rooms, closed spaces, no modern amenities. That’s part of the reason Diane and David Charlton fell in love with this special home in northern Chester County.

With two daughters who rode and a sports-minded son, the family was looking for “lots of open space,” said Diane. “We looked at many historic homes in the area, but none felt right,” she continued.

Then they drove through the gated entrance and up the long, curving drive, past the 10-stall barn with groom’s quarters, along the five paddocks, riding ring and open pastures. Near the crest of the hill, on over 36 acres, was a stunning home. “We bought the property for its spectacular views,” said Diane. “Then we fell in love with this livable home that fit our active family.”

SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE

Vintage Thoroughbred Farm had something for every family member. David started racing, breeding and selling thoroughbreds, mostly for fun. Working with, among others, John Servis—Smarty Jones’ trainer—David was able to have about 10 horses at a time on the aptly named gentleman’s farm.

The girls had a base to develop their riding—from local shows at Ludwig’s Corner to the national level at the Devon Horse Show, as their prize ribbons attest. Meanwhile, the son had perhaps the most enviable game room imaginable—with billiards, ping pong, foosball and shuffle board tables (all included with the sale of the house), not to mention a pool area where everyone wants to hang out.

For Diane, the bright, well-designed, open-space modern house with every amenity—inside and out—made a comfortable, livable place to raise a family, host friends and enjoy country living at its best.

MAIN HOUSE

The L-shape design of this 5-bedroom home contributes to the abundance of natural light in every room. Soaring vaulted ceilings, grand interior spaces and numerous over-size windows capture the views along with sunrises on the eastern side and sunsets over the swimming pool and gardens. Wisteria-bedecked pergolas are reminiscent of a villa on the Riviera, while Brazilian cherry floors, custom finishes, built-ins and more cherry details add warmth throughout this sophisticated three-level house.

The main level features a Great Room with a vaulted ceiling accented with cherry trusses, a stone fireplace on a full fieldstone wall for a Chester County farmhouse touch, plus a full bar and a set of atrium doors to the secluded screened porch. Pocket doors lead to the equally impressive dining room, with cathedral ceiling, more wooden trusses, fieldstone fireplace, built-ins, spectacular views and access to the rose garden.

The spacious gourmet kitchen, with breakfast room and banquette, is stocked with high-end appliances, cabinets galore, yards of granite counters—all overlooking the lush gardens, water features, koi pond, pool area and well-appointed pool house.

A sunny informal family room with built-in entertainment center and a cozy library with more cherry built-ins share a two-sided fireplace and are at the end of the main level.

OTHER LEVELS

Upstairs are four bedrooms (one with sitting room, kitchenette and en suite bath), five bathrooms, a cherry-paneled home office, and a hexagonal bonus room with covered patio. The spectacular Master Suite, with 14-foot coffered ceilings and equally tall stone fireplace, boasts a sunrise balcony, second laundry room (with granite folding counter), two windowed walk-in closets, plenty of built-in storage and two large master bathrooms—one with an infinity whirlpool tub and the other with a private sunset deck.

The sunny Lower Level opens to manicured gardens and features a guest/in-law suite with bath, a vast game room, a custom-crafted, climate-controlled 2500-bottle wine cellar, a fully ventilated cigar room (with exposed fieldstone details), and a second family room with fieldstone fireplace, full bath and large sauna.

Two utility rooms house top-of-the-line master systems for a home with many high-tech upgrades (Nest thermostats, Sonos music system, EERO wifi).

PRIVACY AND COUNTRY LIVING

Yet another private space and special feature is the observatory, at the top of the stairs in the corner tower, offering panoramic views of the 400+ acres of preserved land surrounding the property. You may catch sight of trail riders on the Horseshoe Trail or other riding trails on the property, see activity in the paddocks or full-size riding ring, or get a glimpse of Beaver Run Creek, a tributary of French Creek.

This home offers the opportunity to enjoy the best of Chester County and the epitome of country living. ♦

Food News

A few of our favorite things to share this month about local food and drink

Co-Op Changes.

The West Chester Food Co-Op is rebranding in a big way. To distinguish themselves from other food organizations in West Chester, they're now the West Chester Cooperative. This new name comes with a new tagline, "a community-owned grocery," and an updated logo that pays homage to the colors of seasonal produce like plums, beets and asparagus. What hasn't changed? Their mission—bringing the people of West Chester together around affordable, locally sourced, delicious produce. For more info and to become a member, visit WCFood.coop.

T's On Top.

Two Chester County restaurants were named semifinalists for the 2018 James Beard Awards. Teresa's Next Door in Wayne and Talula's Table in Kennett Square both bested thousands across the country to make it to this level. Teresa's Next Door fought for the Outstanding Bar Program award, boasting a world-class beverage program and eclectic menu choices like wood grilled duck. Talula's Table, a semifinalist for the Outstanding Restaurant award, provides distinctive dining and seasonally inspired menus. Though they didn't make the finals, these restaurants are still stars. Terasas-NextDoor.com; TalulasTable.com.

Fresh Food Options.

Tired of your usual dining out options? Louette's BYO in Phoenixville and Epicurean Garage in Chester Springs offer two new choices. Rustic Louette's offers creative fusions on small plates—meaning you can build your own tasting menu and try a bit of everything. Or if you're looking for something more traditional, head over to Epicurean Garage for industrial vibes and locally sourced foods like burgers and fried chicken. EpicureanGarage.com; LouettesBYO.com.

Leave Room for Mushrooms.

If you're mystified by mushrooms, you're not alone. Often pushed aside in favor of tastier, more familiar sides, this super food is more valuable to your health than you may think. Still skeptical? Join the Woodlands at Phillips Mushroom Farms in Kennett Square on May 12th to learn about the nutritional and health benefits of mushrooms. Let Mycologist Tina Ellor convince you to find room for this forgotten food in your diet. Your body will thank you. 1020 Kaolin Rd., Kennett Square. TheWoodlandsAtPhillips.com/Events.

Gin Is In.

Everyone's talking about homemade beer. Stand out from the crowd with DIY gin! The Homemade Gin Kit is bootlegging in a box, and the perfect gift for liquor fans and DIYers. Want to try it? All you need is a bottle of vodka, the kit (available online and at kitchenware stores), and patience—the mixture must sit for 36 hours. But the first sip of your bespoke bottle of golden, artisanal gin will be so worth it. As will the bragging rights! HomemadeGin.com.

[Brandywine Table]

Ka'Chi Truck

KOREAN WITH A TWIST

Laura Muzzi Brennan

MAY BRINGS MANY FAMILIAR WAYS TO DINE al fresco: on restaurant patios, on picnic blankets, on lounge chairs by the pool. But if you've never dined in line, you're missing out.

Our region is home to hundreds of food trucks offering tastes from around the globe. Start talking to groupies at any food festival, and you'll find people who follow their favorite trucks like Dead-heads once "toured" with Jerry Garcia.

This made choosing our featured truck a difficult task. But after much deliberation—and a curiosity about Korean food piqued by hours watching the Olympics in PyeongChang—we bring you Ka'Chi Truck where Korean food is served with a twist.

Sung-Yoon Kang opened Ka'Chi (meaning "together") in 2012 with help from wife Dawn. Both have restaurants in their blood. Dawn's family owned The Dansbury Depot in East Stroudsburg, PA for years.

Before Kang, a Korean native, came to the U.S. in the early 1990s, he lived in Saudi Arabia where his dad opened a restaurant. He also learned his craft at home in his mother's kitchen. He cites her alongside famous professional chefs Roy Choi and Edward Lee as important influences.

When Ka'Chi first got rolling, its fried kimchi (fermented cabbage) rice balls and daeji bulgogi (spicy pork) tacos made a name for themselves on the West Chester University lunchtime food truck scene. These dishes as well as "simplified" bibimbap (rice bowls with choice of protein, greens and red cabbage slaw) remain popular even as Ka'Chi has rolled on from the University.

Nowadays, Kang does about 80 events every year from spring through early winter including the Phoenixville and Chester County food festivals, Chaddsford Winery Food Competition and Swarthmore Co-Op Truck-a-Thon. He also sets up shop at local breweries (Bluebird Distilling, East Branch Brewing and Locust Lane Craft Brewery) as well as catering weddings and other private events.

No matter the venue, his Korean BBQ tacos sell like crazy. Topped with a choice of sauces—Ka'Chi sauce (spicy mayo), gochujang (hot pepper paste) or pineapple habanero sauce, they represent truck cuisine at its best.

While Kang puts his own spin on dishes (kimcheese fries, anyone?), he gives me a crash course in Korean food basics. Like any cuisine, Korean food varies regionally, but in general, dishes are medium spicy with heat that builds slowly rather than assaulting your tongue at first bite. Rice and kimchi are at the heart of most meals with no distinctions drawn between "breakfast" and "dinner" foods. Vegetable side dishes, called banchan, are essential to Korean cuisine as are soups and stews.

As spring slips into summer, line up at Ka'Chi Truck or any one of our area's stellar mobile food courts. You'll discover new cuisines and bond with fellow foodies all while taking in fresh air and sunshine.

Bulgogi

This sweet, soy marinated beef is versatile: put it into tacos, roll it in lettuce wraps or serve it over rice. Recipe courtesy of Chef Sung-Yoon Kang.

- ½ C. soy sauce
- ¼ C. water
- 3-4 Tb. brown sugar
- 3-4 Tb. minced garlic
- 1 Tb. sesame oil
- ½ tsp. black pepper
- 1½-2 lbs. thinly sliced sirloin or ribeye
- ½ onion thinly sliced, optional
- 1 scallion, cut into 1" strips, optional

Whisk together soy sauce, water, brown sugar, garlic, sesame oil and pepper in a large bowl. Add beef, onion and scallion. Mix thoroughly.

Cover and refrigerate for ½ hour or better yet, overnight.

Cook bulgogi on a grill or in a pan on the stove for 2-3 minutes. If you do cook in a pan, crank up the heat to get some caramelization. If not, the bulgogi will still taste great but will have a lot of juice which you can pour over rice and accompany with toasted seaweed.

Makes 4 servings.

Spicy Gochujang Cucumbers

Food Truck Wisdom

When time is short and space is limited, think like a food truck chef. Here's what Ka'Chi Truck owner Sung-Yoon Kang has learned in his kitchen on wheels.

Strip a dish down to its essence. Figure out which ingredients make a big impact and cut the rest. No one but a restaurant critic will miss a tablespoon of finely diced jicama in the salad.

Choose compact, multi-tasking kitchen equipment. A super sharp knife works wonders; so does an immersion blender. And both can be cleaned up fast in a tiny sink.

Label everything. If you can find ingredients quickly, not only will you be calmer but other people can jump in easily to lend a hand. One more benefit: less waste. No more throwing out things because you can't remember what they are!

Clean as you go. Whether you're cooking in an apartment's galley kitchen or a tricked out chef's space the size of Kim Kardashian's shoe closet, a tower of dirty dishes yucks your yum.

- ½ C. gochujang
- 2-3 Tb. sugar
- Up to ¼ C. water
- 1 Tb. minced garlic, more to taste
- 4-6 English or Kirby cucumbers, unpeeled and cut ¼" thick

Put gochujang in a bowl. Add sugar and water, a little bit at a time until the mixture reaches a consistency that's slightly runnier than peanut butter. Add garlic.

About Kimchi

Spelled kimchi or kimchee, this fermented vegetable dish is a staple of Korean cooking. Among its many positive attributes: it's got good bacteria essential to gut health and lots of fiber. And its spicy, sour, slightly sweet taste pairs well with all manner of rice bowls, soups and stews, even pancakes. No wonder it's on the table at every traditional Korean meal!

While there are as many kimchi variations as there are Korean cooks, napa cabbage kimchi (baechu-kimchi) is the most common. It's made by salting cabbage leaves and coating them with a paste made of hot pepper flakes (gochu-garu), garlic, ginger and fish sauce and putting the mixture in a large jar to ferment.

Impatient cooks like Roy Choi of "L.A. Son" fame start eating kimchi as soon as he spreads the paste. Others take a bite only after the mixture ferments 1–2 days at room temperature. Diehards wait until the kimchi has reached its flavor peak, after a 2-week slow ferment in the fridge. The bottom line: kimchi's flavor and texture change as it ferments, so there's no right or wrong time to enjoy it.

To learn more about kimchi and other Korean dishes, check out one of Chef Kang's favorite blogs: BeyondKimchee.com.

In a separate bowl, add 2–3 Tb. of the gochujang mixture to the cucumbers and mix together. Let sit for 15–20 minutes.

Pour out the excess water. Add the rest of the gochujang mixture and enjoy immediately or refrigerate and enjoy for up to a week.

Makes 8–10 servings.

Korean Grilled Chicken

I adapted this recipe from Lucky Peach's 101 Easy Asian Recipes. See note about gochujang in Spicy Gochujang Cucumbers recipe. Sriracha works fine here, but if you want to be more authentic, use the gochujang.

| 2 Tb. sriracha or gochujang, plus more for serving | 1/2 tsp. kosher salt                                       |
| 3 Tb. loosely packed brown sugar                   | 2 tsp. grated fresh ginger (or 1 tsp. dried minced ginger— |
| 2 Tb. water  | I use Penzey's brand.)                                     |
| 2 Tb. apple cider vinegar                          | 4 boneless, skinless chicken thighs                        |
| 2 Tb. olive oil or other vegetable oil             | Scallions, thinly sliced, optional                         |

Whisk together all ingredients except chicken and scallions in a bowl.

Put chicken in a large Ziploc bag and pour marinade over. Refrigerate for 48 hours.

When ready to cook, allow chicken to sit in marinade at room temperature for about 15 minutes, just to take the chill off and to allow the oil in the marinade to liquify.

Heat a grill pan over medium-high heat and cook in batches, about 4–5 minutes per side until chicken reaches an internal temperature of 165°. Do not overcrowd the pan or you may end up steaming the chicken. Note: there will be some smoke, so turn on the exhaust fan before you add the chicken to the pan.

Serve over rice. Garnish with sliced scallions and serve with extra sriracha or gochujang.

Makes 4 servings (2 if people are really hungry).

Kimchi Pancake with Dipping Sauce

If you're new to Korean cooking (as I am), this recipe is a great place to start. It's fast and easy, and so delicious that when I asked my family to taste it, they ate the whole thing in less than five minutes.

I bought the kimchi from Hmart, an Asian grocery and home goods store with Pennsylvania locations in Upper Darby, Elkins Park and Levittown. It's well worth a trip— especially if you want to pick up ingredients to make your own kimchi or see an entire aisle of chili sauces from all over Asia.

This recipe is a hybrid of recipes I found in Lucky Peach's 101 Easy Asian Recipes and Maangchi's Real Korean Cooking.

For the kimchi pancake:

1 C. kimchi

Water

¼ C. all-purpose flour

¼ C. rice flour

½ tsp. kosher salt

2 thinly sliced scallions

2 Tb. canola oil, divided

For the dipping sauce:

3 Tb. soy sauce

1 Tb. sweet red chili sauce

1 tsp. red pepper flakes, more or less to taste*

**If you're using Korean red pepper flakes, you'll probably want to add more than 1 tsp. to your dipping sauce. Korean flakes don't contain seeds, making them milder than the red pepper flakes from a typical grocery store.*

Place the kimchi in a strainer set over a bowl and push down with the back of a spoon to release as much liquid as possible. Add more kimchi liquid from the jar and cold water to make ½ cup liquid. Chop and set kimchi aside.

Add both flours and salt to the ½ cup kimchi liquid. Stir and let sit for a few minutes. This mixture should resemble thick pancake batter. If it's too doughy, add more water, 1 tsp. at a time until you reach the right consistency. Mix in the chopped kimchi and scallions. Let sit for a few more minutes.

Heat 1 Tb. oil in a 12-inch skillet set over medium-high heat. Add kimchi mixture to skillet and spread nearly to edges. Cook for 3–4 minutes and flip.

Add the remaining 1 Tb. oil around the edge of the pancake and lift pancake so oil spreads underneath it. Cook for 1–2 more minutes until pancake is golden.

Remove from skillet and let sit on a cutting board for a few minutes.

Meanwhile, whisk together soy sauce, chili sauce and red pepper flakes. Cut into 8 wedges. Serve with dipping sauce.

Makes 2–4 servings. ♦
